

colour your world

Style from Oscar de la Renta's 2009 Resort collection.
Green: Green is the colour of growth and development. This is the perfect colour to wear when learning new skills or taking classes. Green is a great motivational colour for people who need to be energised. It is a stimulating colour so should be avoided when feeling restless.

Strapless dress with black bow from Marks & Spencer. Red animal print peep-toe heels from Russell & Bromley.

Red: This is the ideal colour when feeling confident and wanting to draw attention to yourself. Wear red if you're going on an audition, speaking in public or want to stand out from the crowd. Avoid this colour if you're suffering from nervousness.

A design from the Reem Acra 2009 Spring collection.

Yellow: This colour conveys stability and promotes clarity. Wear it when you have important decisions to make. Avoid yellow when you are feeling tired, because it can be a drain on your energy levels.

Versace hot pink dress from the 2009 Spring collection.

Pink: Pink is fun and full of romance. Wear pink if you want to resolve a situation with a loved one. This colour is soothing, nurturing and will help dissolve any feelings of anger.

Designs from the Jenny Schweitzberger collection.

Brown: Feeling scared or insecure? Brown is a grounding colour and has a comforting effect, which will make you feel safe. Avoid brown when dealing with stubborn people.

A model wearing a Karl Lagerfeld design from the Chanel 2009 Spring/Summer collection.
Black: Black conveys authority and power. It promotes a sense of depth and strength. Wear this colour when you want to command leadership or exude mystery. Stay away from black if you're wanting to be treated as an equal.

love and marriage

Should you choose a strapless wedding dress? A sit-down reception? What about the flowers? The music? The food?

PLANNING a wedding is all about the details – and that's where Donnie Brown comes in. Brown is a Texas wedding planner known for his wacky sense of humour on the Style Network show Whose Wedding is it Anyway?

Here he answers some essential questions.

Q: Tell us about your clients and the budgets for their weddings. How much – on average – do they want to spend on their big day?

A: We are fortunate to have a wide variety of budgets that come in the door. We do weddings ranging from US$15,000 (NZ$20,000) to US$750,000 (NZ$1 million) every year. I would think the median amount is somewhere in the US$135,000 range.

Q: What are, say, the top five ways to save money on a wedding?

A: 1 Create a working budget and stick to it; 2 Trim the fat out of your guest list. Every person who is invited costs money. Have those people you really want at your wedding and eliminate the excess so you can get as close to the wedding you want as possible; 3 Do a Friday or Sunday wedding. Saturdays are premium and you can very often save money on alternative days; 4 Pay for your wedding bills on your credit card and use the reward points for your honeymoon travel; 5 Carefully review the contracts and negotiate. You would be surprised how much room vendors and venues have in their arsenal to work with you on your wedding. If you don't ask, you will never know.

Q: What do you not want to skip on? Venue? Food? Decor?

A: Skimp on the things that are least important to you as a bride and groom. Everyone is different. Some have their hearts set on better food. For some, it's the gown, and for some it's the decor or entertainment. Everyone is different.

Q: What one piece of advice do you have for couples while planning their wedding?

A: Hire a good wedding planner if you can. They can save you time, stress and even money by steering you through the process more efficiently, getting better contract negotiations and protecting you from unethical vendors. MCT
